

THE ENGLISH VERSION OF THE NEW DOCUMENTARY...

Canadian Soldier ਸ਼ੌਰੇਹ

A LITTLE STORY IN A BIG WAR

The film tells the fascinating and unknown story of a handful of Sikh immigrants to Canada who enlisted in the Canadian Army in World War 1. They were volunteers who fought, and some died, for a country which denied them even the basic rights of citizenship.

In 2011, Canadian Soldier Sikhs was screened at The Sikh International Film Festival in New York, where it won Best Documentary award, and at The Sikh Arts & Film Festival, in California, winning a Creative Media Award. The film was an official selection at the Punjabi International Film Festival, Toronto, in 2012.

Canadian Soldier Sikhs was made possible with 100% funding from the OMNI Television Independent Producers Initiative.
